A Quick Guide to Citing Sources using AMA Style

For more information about using the AMA Manual of Style: A Guide for Authors and Editors, 10th ed. (2007), please refer to the full manual, either in print or electronically.

BOOKS

Single Author

Author last name Author first initials. Title of Book. Edition number, if it is 2nd edition or above. City, State (or country) of publisher: Publisher’s name; copyright year.

Multiple Authors

As for single author, except list all authors, up to six, with authors separated by commas. For greater than six authors, list first three followed by “et al”.

Edited Book

List editor names in same manner as authors, followed by “ed(s)”.

Book Chapter

Author(s) of chapter. Title of chapter. In: Editor(s), ed(s). Title of Book. Edition number, if it is 2nd edition or above. City, State (or country) of publisher: Publisher’s name; copyright year.

E-BOOKS

As above, plus URL. Accessed date.

JOURNAL ARTICLES

- List author names as Doe JA. For up to six authors, list all authors, separated by commas. For greater than six authors, list first three followed by “et al”.
- Use abbreviations for journal titles, without punctuation, as found in PubMed or the NLM Catalog. For example, the New England Journal of Medicine should be listed as N Engl J Med. The month of the journal is included only if pagination is not continuous.

Any ideas taken from somebody else, whether in the form of exact quotes or paraphrases, must be properly cited in order to give credit to the original author, and so that the reader can follow up with the original source, if desired.

- Number references in the order in which they were cited, using superscript Arabic numbers.
- Insert the superscript number outside periods and commas, and inside colons and semi-colons.
- If a reference is used multiple times, use the same number each time.
- List all references at the end of the paper, on a separate page entitled REFERENCES, in the order in which they appear in the paper.
